Are You Constantly Asking Yourself: Why Isn't My Business Making Money?

Learning to Love Money is the Secret to Making More of It!

I can hear the thoughts running through your head right now:

- You want me to love money?? Ugh! Money is a struggle for me.
- I don't like to think about money.
- I'm not good with money but I am good at what I do, so why isn't my business growing?
- What does my relationship to money have to do with growing my business?

I believe that we cannot create the freedom, flexibility and financial independence that we crave until we understand our relationship with money. We all have a history with money and certain beliefs, challenges and gifts when it comes to making money.

Until you understand your own relationship with money and how your beliefs about money are impacting your success, all the marketing in the world won't get you the clients you need to grow your business.

How Healthy Is Your Relationship to Money?

Below is a short quiz that will give you some insight into your relationship with money. Read each statement and mark it with True or False.

1. I don't pay attention to where my money goes every month. I rarely even think about money.
2. I act as if I have plenty of money, but inside, I'm always worried that I don't have enough to meet my monthly bills.
3. I don't deserve a lot of money when others have less than I do.
4. Things would get better if I had more money.
5. It's extravagant to spend money on myself.
6. I always have just enough money to live on.
7. I have plenty of money in savings for a rainy day.

8. I worry about money constantly.
9. Money isn't as important to me as being of service to others.
10. I know exactly how much money I make each month and how much my expenses are.
11. Making money is easy for me. I can always get money when I need it.
12. The more money I make, the more I spend.
13. I don't like to talk about how much money I have or make.
14. Those who don't have money are probably not trying hard enough.
15. Money would solve most of my problems.
16. I am tense and my stomach is in knots when I think about my finances.
17. I feel a little intimidated by people with lots of money.
18. I dread sitting down and paying my bills every month.
19. I buy things on credit cards that I know I can't pay for when the statement comes in.
20. I get confused when making money decisions.
21. I prefer for someone else to make all the money decisions.
22. Spending money on myself makes me feel better.
23. I wish I didn't have to think about money or plan for the future.

Now count up your responses to each of the 22 questions. If you answered true to five or more of the questions, it's time to look more deeply into your relationship with money. The more you are able to understand your attitudes, beliefs and values around money, the more you will be able to feel in control of your own financial destiny and create financial freedom in your life.

How does your relationship with money impact your business?

Here are 6 specific ways that your relationship to money is most likely limiting your business success:

1. You are not charging what you are worth - your products and services are underpriced.
2. You are giving away your time and services by overdelivering and not setting clear boundaries.
3. You don't like to sell, so you don't. You just hope that clients will appear and want to do business with you.
4. You don't pay attention to how much money is actually flowing into and out of your business.
5. You feel like you are putting in more hours than ever and getting nowhere.
6. You don't have a consistent marketing plan in place that generates a consistent flow of clients and cash into your business.

Who is Minette?

I am Dr. Minette Riordan and I help creative women entrepreneurs like you eliminate the fear, doubt and lack of clarity that is stopping you from creating the freedom, flexibility and financial independence that you crave.

Believe me, I have been exactly where you are. I have been overwhelmed, overworked, disconnected from myself and my family, broke, depressed and just plain mad that I couldn't figure out how to make money.

Success starts with creating a vibrant and balanced plan that supports all of the roles you play as a woman business owner: entrepreneur, visionary, leader, mother, wife, lover, daughter, sister and friend. Yes, you can create a thriving, profitable business and still have a personal life, too. I know it can be done, because that's my life now.

2 years ago, my husband and I made a dramatic change to our lives – we uprooted ourselves and our two kids after 13 years in the Dallas, TX area and relocated to sunny Santa Barbara, CA. I sold my business and started over – new friends, new contacts, and a vague idea of what I wanted to do next.

Moving our family from Texas to California was hard. I can still remember my kids crying on that last day of school as we prepared to leave the only home they had ever known. I remember standing in my empty house and thinking, it's not our home anymore... but all the challenges, tears and changes were worth it. My husband and I both work from home now and one of us is here every day when our kids get home from school. Our kids are 15 and 12, being present in their lives is so important right now. I love that they walk into our office every afternoon and share how their day went. That flexibility and availability has always been super important to us, in fact many of our business and lifestyle decisions were made because of our core values around family, commitment and connection.

Our financial and professional goals are built around what we value the most: freedom and flexibility! Building a coaching practice has been an incredible gift in my life and allowed me to help move our family closer to our goals. I get to help other women all day long to create a lifestyle that is a match for their core values, a lifestyle that supports their family and still allows them to build a profitable business.

I work with creative women entrepreneurs and entrepreneurial couples who are 100% committed to growing their business. Since everyone is different, this is not a business plan in a box. When you choose to work with me, we will co-create your perfect business & marketing plan to match your values, your personality and your lifestyle. We will focus on creating a daily plan of action where you are working toward achieving your goals with only 3-6 things on your to-do list each day. If you are ready to stop the stress and overwhelm and to start making money today, be sure to apply for a free Money Mastery Breakthrough Session now. I only offer a few of these free sessions each month, so act quickly!
